

Equal Opportunity Training Video

An older worker undermines a new employee and the supervisor in the dispatch/delivery area of a furniture retailer.

Key personalities in this scene are:

Julian - New employee learning about the store job

Cassius - Long-term employee

Mark - Their supervisor

Transcript

Setting: Warehouse. Cassius is preparing an order for delivery, sees Julian nearby.

Cassius: Hey junior!

Julian: Me?

Cassius: Whatcha doing?

Julian: Somethin' for the boss. I'm busy.

Cassius: Don't worry about him. This is more important.

Julian: What?

Cassius: I want you to sort this mess out. It'll take you about an hour.

Julian: If I get in the shit with Mark.....

Cassius: Don't worry - this is more important

Julian, carrying a folder, approaches Cassius with a question.

Julian: What do I do with this one? I'm not sure if I was supposed to count those or those?

Cassius: Ah just write anything in. Doesn't matter.

Julian: But Mark told me to get it right, for head office.

Cassius: Mate, it's routine stuff, it means jack-shit, just take a guess.

Julian: Yeah?

Cassius: Trust me.

Setting: Marks office

Mark: Do you know anything about this?

Cassius: About what?

Mark: These figures are out of whack.

Cassius: Argh, What's it got to do with me?

Mark: I gave the job to young Julian, he's bulls'd it up. I reckon someone over here told him rough enough is good enough.

Cassius: Like who would that be?

Mark: Didn't say. It isn't the first time. Someone's setting him up. Making me look like a dickhead. The Managing Director wants these figures faxed today. Like now.

Cassius: Yep, I'll fix it.

Mark: Sure?

Cassius: Yeah, guaranteed. I'll have them to you within the hour.

Mark: Thanks mate, you're a gem.

End